Lesson to world in ship rescue

President Ford responds to the first news that the crew of the U.S. merchant ship Mayaguez is safe as he meets with aides in the White House. WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today American rescue of the U.S. cargo ship Mayaguez, seized by the Cambodians should teach the world the United States will not be pushed around.

Kissinger told a news conference the successful military operation against Cambodia on Wednesday "ought to make clear there are limits beyond which the United States cannot be pushed and that the United States is prepared to defend its interests."

Giving what he said was a full account of the Mayaguez rescue operation, he said for 60 hours from the time the Cambodians seized the vessel on Monday that President Ford tried to give diplomacy every chance to work.

However, Kissinger said, "There was no chance during the crisis to resolve it diplomatically."

At no time he said, did the Cambodians make any response to American demands that the ship and its 39-man crew be released.

Kissinger said he knew Cambodia had received American messages about the ship because the United States had delivered them to the Cambodian Embassy in Peking.

Meanwhile, a Pentagon spokesman said one U.S. serviceman was known to have been killed as Marines assaulted the island of Tang in the Gulf of Thailand during the rescue operation. Other Pentagon sources have said a second American serviceman was killed.

The spokesman, Joseph Laitin, said 13 American servicemen are still listed as missing after they went down in a helicopter in open seas during the recovery. He said an additional 22 Marines and Air Force men were wounded, at least three of them seriously.

Laitin also disclosed that U.S. military operations, especially strikes by U.S. fighter bombers, were much more extensive than had been previously reported.

In addition to one air strike against the Cambodian air base at Ream, Laitin said U.S. warplanes also hit fuel storage facilities adjacent to Kompong Som harbor.

At Ream, he said, Air Force planes fired on locations where 2,400 Khmer Rouge troops were known to be housed.

Laitin said all of the American Marines and Air Force men listed as missing went down with one of the three helicopters lost in the operation. "There are no indications anyone was left on the island," he said.

At the White House, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said President Ford "obviously regrets" military casualties in the rescue. But Nessen added there is always a risk in such efforts.

"He (Ford) regrets the casualties and will express his sympathy to the families," Nessen said. As the freighter Mayaguez steamed toward a safe port, U.S. officials were claiming that its dramatic recovery by military force will signal China and North Korea that the United States is not a "paper tiger" in Asia.

The signal to North Korea is considered by U.S. officials to be of major importance.

Dixon newspaper
executive, dies

Arnold V. Lund, 66, vice president of the B. F. Shaw Printing Co. and general manager of the newspaper division, died Thursday at 4:30 p.m. in St. Clare Hospital, Monroe, Wis., following an extended illness.

Two new events for Petunia Festival this year

Two new events have been added to the 11th Annual Petunia Festival, scheduled July 2 to 6 in Dixon.

John Kuster, president of the Petunia Festival Corp. Board, told 206 gathered at Lyle Grove's Skyline Lounge Thursday night for the Petunia Festival Kick-off Dinner, the newest additions will be a performance by the Bicentennial Chorus, now being formed, and a water fight between Dixon and area fire departments, hosted by the Dixon Rural Department.

The chorus performance will follow the traditional concert by the Municipal Band on the Lee County Courthouse lawn

July 3.

The water fight is tentatively scheduled to be held near the Lincoln Statue on the afternoon of July 4.

The festival will be launched again with an event which proved successful despite some technical problems last year, the National Tractor Pull. That event, sponsored by the Dixon Jaycees will be July 2 and 3 at Moore's Trailer Park.

Lancaster Gymnasium will be the setting for the Antique Show and Auction, sponsored by the Lee County Association for the handicapped, on July 3, 4 and 5.

The canoe races will be held again on July 4. Seven classes of canoes are planned. The race will start in Grand Detour and finish in the Page Park area.

Fireworks will cap off the July 4 events.

The two-hour parade is scheduled the afternoon of July 6.

Kuster said the festival finale, the drum and bugle corps competition, is set for the evening of July 6.

Six units will be on hand, including the Blue Raiders of New Orleans, last year's defending champions.

Also in competition will be the Geneseo Knights, the Van- (See TWO NEW on page 10)

Lindberg waits on Scott decision

Not ruling out governor race

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

Reminded that at the age of 42, with three terms in the Illinois House and now holding a statewide office, he might consider, sometime in the future, to be a candidate for governor, George Lindberg, state comptroller, said for 1976 it depends on "how things look then and what William J. Scott, attorney general, does."

Scott is considered to be the most likely Republican challenger for the governor's post and Lindberg said if the attorney general does run for governor, he will seek a second term as state comptroller. The Republican state official commented, "It is traditional in Illinois for the governor to be the party leader."

"The situation now with a Democratic governor is that the mantle falls on someone else. Sen. Charles H. Percy, demurs and Scott is demurring and I have noticed a growing number of Republicans who are looking to me for leadership."

Lindberg observes he has more experience in state finances than anyone who has been governor since William Stratton, who was first elected in 1952. Stratton was state treasurer before he was elected governor.

Lindberg was interviewed Thursday while he was in the Dixon-Sterling area.

Lindberg, who is a lawyer, said he feels qualified to be attorney general should Scott vacate that post, but that he believes it would be better to seek re-election to his present office.

He is the first person elected to the office he holds, which was created by the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

Noting this, Lindberg, even with the background of serving in the General Assembly for three terms, said he has learned a great deal about state finances as state comptroller and would not mind serving another term in that office.

Lindberg said the accounting system which two nationally known certified public accounting firms set up for his office is "model for state government accounting control."

The General Fund of the state virtually was drained of funds in 1969, and Lindberg said then nobody knew about the state's financial condition because there was no central source of reporting on state finances.

He contended this would not re-occur because of the financial reporting capabilities of his office.

Lindberg noted his office can assist legislators by forecasting economic consequences of proposed bills.

He noted when the legislators were considering exempting food and drugs from sales tax, his office was asked to project how much revenue would be lost. The loss of revenue was found to be $270 million for this fiscal year and $325 million during 1976.

Lindberg said then he was asked to search for sources of funds to replace the lost revenue and his staff determined, if the sales tax was raised to 6 cents, the gain would offset the exemption of food and drugs from sales tax.

The state comptroller said, armed with this information, the legislators dropped the idea of taking sales taxes off of food and drugs.

In February, Lindberg caused a stir in the capital city by disclosing 19 state employees were being paid from Department of Transportation funds whose work was not related to that department.

The state comptroller said his office is presently checking report four state employees now are being paid from Registration and Education Funds who are not connected with that department.

Earlier this week it was reported Scott criticized Lindberg for publicly revealing his debugging activities in February because this act was damaging to a far-reaching investigation the attorney general is conducting.

Scott did not say much about the probe he brought up, but indicated it was related to Gov. Dan Walker's political activities.

Asked what Scott's comments about him meant, Lindberg first replied he was not aware of the attorney general's observation. Then he said "late last year the attorney general did talk with me about his concern that some of Gov. Walker's people had bugged state offices." He said this was only one of several things Scott mentioned at that time and that he has not talked to him since about whatever Scott is investigating.

Recently the state asked for bids for hospitalization policies for its employees and only one firm, Blue Cross and Blue Shield, submitted a proposal. Blue Cross is the current firm supplying the insurance and its bid is up 46 per cent from the present premiums.

Lindberg said he is concerned the state got only one bid but said his only official connection with the Department of Insurance is that one member of his staff is on the Insurance Board.

Lindberg flew from Springfield to his home in Crystal Lake and then traveled by car to the Dixon-Sterling area and today will be at work in the Chicago office.

The Republican officeholder introduced ethics legislation when he was a state representative and has made complete disclosure of his finances for several years.

His trip from Springfield to his home in Crystal Lake is a legitimate expense since he is allowed a certain number of trips between his home and the Capitol and because today he will work in his Chicago office.

Lindberg said the state will not be charged for any of his expenses incurred for traveling from Crystal Lake to the Dixon-Sterling area.

Investigating illegal aid claims, says Lindberg

State Comptroller George Lindberg said Thursday his office is currently investigating ways to eliminate the estimated 18 per cent in illegitimate public aid claims. "We've got some things in the works," Lindberg told a group of Lee County Young Republican members here. He would not elaborate further saying only it would hamper the investigation to disclose any information at this point.

Pointing to Gov. Dan Walker's $10.8 billion proposed 1976 budget, Lindberg said $2 billion goes to public aid recipients "and that's increasing rapidly. He added that the $2 billion figure is the equivalent of the total receipts from state sales tax collected annually. He mentioned a spot check of claims processed through his office is underway, "but to do a thorough job I'd have to triple my staff," the state's first comptroller said.

Lindberg lashed out at the Walker administration terming the governor's proposed accelerated building program nothing more than a "smoke-screen" to hide fiscal inefficiency and Walker's proposed budget a "blueprint for bankruptcy."

"The building program, if implemented, will have less than a one per cent effect on the state's economy," Lindberg said. Referring to the state's unemployment picture, Lindberg offered a breakdown of the nearly 350,000 people out of work. In the manufacturing industry, 142,000 are jobless; retail, 100,000; financial and service, 50,000; construction, 30,000 and government, 20,000.

"Walker's 'bonddoodle,' as I call it, will not have the effect he thinks — in his own words it would employ only 40,000 people," he charged.

"At the same time he has ordered impounded $130 million in road funds — construction has been cut to 54 per cent of what it was under the Ogilvie administration — and he (Walker) says he's worried about jobs."

The state's financial officer said Walker's $4.1 billion building bond program would end up costing taxpayers $6.8 billion by the time the debt is paid off in the year 2004. He said he saw little chance for the building program to pass in the legislature.

"Walker should try to conduct the state's business and forget about his massive public relations effort particularly in the area of public aid claims."

Lindberg stated, "I am willing to give the guy credit but I can't find anything to give him credit for."

Looking ahead to July 1 and Walker's proposed budget, Lindberg said "if it's (budget) approved he will be spending $463 million more than he has — his only alternative at that point will be to increase taxes or cut programs."

"His bond program is no more than a stalling tactic to create a financial smoke-screen and push the financial burden off to future governors," Lindberg expounded. "I recognize prices are escalating — the important thing is for Walker to tell the truth about it — talk is cheap as we have found out with the present administration."

Lindberg said Walker has increased state spending to more than $1.2 billion this year — "another one of his broken promises to curb spending." Referring to what he termed fiscal mismanagement under Walker, Lindberg told the Republican audience he questioned Walker being given an additional $1.2 billion in bonding authority for his building program. "He already has $1.1 billion in bonding authority and has used only 11.3 per cent of it. And there's another $70 million appropriated for an energy bill of which he has not used one cent."

In concluding remarks, Lindberg called on the Republicans to get it all together for 1976.

"With the money, good candidates and your support we can win in November — and I'll be somewhere on that state ticket."

illegal contributions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of Gulf Oil Corp. said today his company made $4 million in illegal political contributions to the ruling party in Korea; $460,000 in donations to the former ruling party in Bolivia; and $50,000 in donations for a "public education program" in the United States about the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Gulf Chairman Bob R. Dorsey said an internal company investigation also has turned up evidence that might indicate use of corporate funds for political purposes in Italy.

In La Paz, the Bolivian cabinet went into emergency session when it learned about Dorsey's statements.

Testifying before the Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations, Dorsey said Gulf paid $1 million in 1966 and $3 million in 1970 to the Democratic-Republican Party of Korea under what he described as great pressure.

He said Gulf made the donation to protect an investment of several million dollars and that he had discovered only recently that the donations were "in violation of a Korean statute."

Dorsey said Gulf made three political contributions in Bolivia.

It bought a $110,000 helicopter for the late Gen. Rene Barrientos while he was campaigning for president of Bolivia in 1966, Dorsey said.

He said Barrientos later demanded and got two other contributions of corporate funds in the amounts of $240,000 and $110,000.

Dorsey said Gulf also secretly funneled $50,000 through First National City Bank of Beirut, Lebanon, "for the purpose of helping to defray the expenses of a public education program endeavoring to bring about a better understanding in America of the Arab-Israeli conflict."

The Gulf chairman volunteered no details about the "education program."

Dorsey said that Gulf was conducting an internal investigation.

Suez could be economic loser

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
Egyptian President Anwar el-Sadat gained a great diplomatic coup by announcing after the breakdown in Secretary Kissinger's Mideast negotiations that Egypt would nevertheless still reopen the Suez Canal.
But has the egg hit the fan?
"Closing the Canal was a terrible blow to Egypt," President Sadat told me in Cairo. "Next to cotton, it was always our biggest hard-currency earner—nearly $250 million a year."
Sadat's reopening pledge has proved a Herculean task. Egypt has had in place the largest fleet of dredges in the world. Sadat mentioned that their capacity was an astounding nine million meters a year. But it has taken nearly a year just to clear out some 750,000 mines, bombs, trucks, amphibious vehicles, etc. And Egypt's president expressed great gratitude for our country's assistance.
U.S. Rear Adm. Kent J. Carrol, commanding our naval detachment helping the Egyptians, brought demolition crews, Navy divers, "frog men" and U.S. technicians. British and French detachments followed.
Egypt's chief-of-state put two men in charge in whom he has complete confidence: Minister of Reconstruction Osman Ahmed Osman and Chairman of the Suez Canal Authority Ahmed Mashour. They plan a new 30-mile branch from Port Said south, permitting two-way traffic.
Inaugurated Nov. 16, 1869 after 10 years under construction—the Canal section 102 miles long—it is nearly 106 years old. Ismail Pasha, hereditary khedive under the Ottoman sultan, grew determined that Egypt develop free from Turkish and European domination. France, to Britain's dismay, supplied the money and put engineer Ferdinand de Lesseps at Ismail's disposal.

Ismail commissioned Giuseppe Verdi to compose "Aida" for the opening. And French Empress Eugenie and De Lesseps led a 50-mile parade of 68 vessels of various nationalities aboard the glittering yacht "Aigle."
The French contrived a slap at the British. Egypt placed the British envoy's flag-draped vessel far back in the line. But within six years Disraeli bought from Ismail ($18 million) the Canal's controlling shares.
The "Cape route" around the bottom of Africa from the Persian Gulf to Europe's North Sea is about 11,300 miles. Via the Canal it is about 6,500 miles. And Bismark called this waterway "the cord in the neck of the British Empire that connects the spine with the brain."
Egypt has blocked the Canal twice; first during the 1956 Israel-British French Suez crisis and again in the 1967 Israel war. It had been closed six years before the 1973 Israel war and for eight years by now.
In the year before Egypt closed the Canal the second time, 21,250 ships passed through. Three-quarters of this traffic was oil. The Canal's depth is 38 feet, limiting it to vessels drawing less than 34 feet. In terms of tankers, 60,000-ton carriers. But warned and frightened by the Canal's first closing, the shipping world plunged into giant 200,000-ton and even 400,000-ton supertankers—10 times the Suez maximum—for the "Cape route."

The Canal would have to be dredged to 67 feet and widened, at incredible expense, and this would take about six years, even to accommodate 150,000 ton vessels. But now the explanation about how the egg has hit the fan.
It costs only $2.20 per ton to transport supertanker oil from the Persian Gulf around Africa to Rotterdam or Marseilles. Using a 60,000 ton vessel limited by the Canal, this $2.20 would be $4.50. The Canal tolls would be on top of this.
This toll before the 1967 war was 90 cents a ton. Today it is forecast at $2 a ton. That $2 recognizes only the impact of eight years' inflation and allows nothing for the immense canal-clearing costs.
Additionally, Lloyd's in London has now notified the shipping world that it still considers this a war zone and the insurance will be high.
Egypt's profits must come from the top number of canal-using vessels. And if few find the Canal economical, Egypt's gain vanishes immediately on the June 5 reopening.

Thoughts on the end of the war

(Editor's Note: Boyd Lewis, retired president and editor of Newspaper Enterprise Association, covered the close of World War II as European News Manager for United Press. He was present at the German surrender in the West. These remarks were prepared for the 30th anniversary VE Day Reunion of the Overseas Press Club in New York.)
By BOYD LEWIS
What purpose could it serve to remember the surrender of Germany ending World War II 30 years ago if we do not relate it to the present—and to the future.
My memory of VE Day and the scene I was privileged to witness at Reims is very clear. My memories of action I saw with fighting troops are also clear.
My conception of our enemy and our purpose in that war are likewise very clear. They are much more clear than my conceptions about the war which has just come to an inglorious and ambiguous end in Southeast Asia.
Above all, I have a clear conception that 30 years ago we won something. We rolled back the high tide of Nazism and eliminated Adolf Hitler. In contrast, we must strain to find any benefit or gain from the Vietnam war. We know that we have lost much in men and substance but our loss in world influence is yet to be counted.
So perhaps, if there is any reason for old war correspondents to gather in reunion it is to revive for an hour or two in memory the days of high purpose, of national and individual dedication and simple heroism which came down in May 1945 to their climax in a schoolhouse at Reims, France, which was Dwight D. Eisenhower's Supreme Allied Headquarters.
In less than a year from the Normandy landings we were at the surrender table, the good guys and the bad guys. The good guys were seated on the far side from where the correspondents stood, clustered around a Signal Corps newsreel camera. Significantly, the good guys of that day included a Russian general along with the Americans, British and French.
The bad guys sat with their backs toward us, facing the victors. They were three—a general, an admiral and the general's aide. The German general, of course, was Col. Gen. Gustav Jodl, Nazi chief of staff. Our head man was Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell (Beetle) Smith, Ike's chief of staff.

The news coverage was by 16 representatives of the world press, including radio broadcasting, chosen by prearrangement to cover such an event. Three reporters represented the United States, Jimmy Kilgallen of International News Service, Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press and myself for the United Press. Price Day of the Baltimore Sun was a fourth American but he was standing in for ailing Andre Glarner of the British Exchange Telegraph.
We'd been flown out from Paris with some staff officers of the headquarters public relations staff and American and British censors. Not until we were flying toward Reims did Maj. Gen. Frank Allen confirm what we all knew, that SHAEF's "sortie to Reims" was "a mission to cover the signing of the peace." Allen called us to the center of the C-47 bucket job and put us under a pledge of honor not to reveal even the existence of the meeting we were being allowed to cover until released by SHAEF.
We do not need to be reminded of the controversy that flowed from that pledge and from the decision taken after the event by one of our number to flout the pledge in order to avoid a beating by his competitors.
We are not here to celebrate that action, even though there may seem to be a climate in current journalism which sometimes, I regret to say, exalts news obtained by leaks, cash purchase and dishonor of confidence.
Once we were inside the school building we were briefed on background by a pair of fine journalists in uniform, officers on Eisenhower's staff, who had been there during the preliminary negotiations. They sketched how the Germans had been jockeying for days to surrender unilaterally to the Allies through Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Group near the Danish border. Parenthetically, we know now that high-ranking Nazis nursed a wild hope that they could persuade us to link forces with them and throw the Russians out of Germany.
Early in the morning of Monday, Allen took us to the SHAEF "war room," a large converted classroom whose walls bore large maps showing progress of the battle up to a few hours earlier.

The correspondents were lined up behind a chalk stripe on the floor and soon the Germans were led in to face the Allied officers. Jodl was a picture of defeat, his eyes bloodshot and his cheeks crosshatched with tiny purple lines.
The signing of total surrender took about 20 minutes. Then Jodl asked permission to address the Allied officers. In hoarse German he said that the German people and German army had suffered more than anyone else in the war. He pleaded that the conquerors treat them with leniency.
In that moment there was only astonishment and repugnance. Surely none in that room, including the Nazi officers, would have dreamed of the extent of that leniency during the postwar years of reconstruction and realignment of Europe.
We trooped to a little suite of offices where Eisenhower waited at his desk. He looked up as the Germans were lined up and asked the official translator, "Do they understand what they have signed?" Without waiting, Jodl nodded, "Ja, ja." Ike rapped out instructions concerning the mechanics of surrendering the German armed forces and dismissed the Germans with a wave of his hand and "Take 'em away." Exit Jodl, stumbling on a newsreel cable.
Ike sat for a few moments wrapped in silent thought, then leaped to give the Russian general, Susloparov, a bear hug and a happy grin. Five years later he would tell me at Columbia University of his thoughts in those pregnant first moments of victory: "I was looking at the face of this man Jodl, who looked like any ordinary man, but who had helped Hitler murder 15 million people."
It is worth noting that Ike, in his moment of triumph after leading the greatest army in the history of the world, devoted time to trying to fathom the nature of his fanatical adversary.
One wonders if anyone in this moment of national ignominy and liquidation sale of used-up idealisms is bothering to try to figure out what makes the other side tick.
...And perhaps more importantly why our side did not.

Realism vs. morals in foreign policy

By DON OAKLEY
What place should moral principles have in the conduct of a nation's foreign policy?
At a time when Americans are concerned about the future direction of their country in the light of the bitter Vietnam experience, at a time when the "Dirty tricks" of the Central Intelligence Agency—which some critics allege extended to the attempted or contemplated assassination of certain foreign heads of state—are the subject of official investigation, the question is far from a rhetorical one.
All governments claim to act from moral principles, of course, but the question has a special relevance for Americans, according to Charles Frankel, professor of philosophy and public affairs at Columbia University.
This is because, he writes in "Morality and U.S. Foreign Policy," a booklet recently published by the private, non-partisan educational Foreign Policy Assn., unlike most other nations "made by God or history," the United States "declared its itself a nation by an act of explicit political self-construction, by a deliberate compact into which people entered by announcing their allegiance to universal principles that they declared ought to be at the foundation of government everywhere."

Jefferson, in his Inaugural Address of 1801, described the United States government as "the world's best hope." Lincoln, not a man of evangelical temper, spoke of the effort at popular government as "the last, best hope of man."
Along with this sense of hope, says Frankel, there has been in the American air since the time of the Declaration of Independence the idea that something better is expected of a nation self-created to demonstrate the possibility of a morally principled system of government. Something better is expected of that nation by the world; something better is demanded by that nation's own citizens.
Out of the disillusionment of American idealism after World War

I, however, and out of the apparent lessons of World War II, there emerged a new school—the political realists—who called for a foreign policy guided by a hard-headed conception of the national interest.
Among other things, says Frankel, realism maintains that (a) all general principles are suspect in foreign policy; (b) moral principles are the worst kind of general principles, inviting zealotry and fanaticism; (c) there is a direct contradiction between morals and politics, and (d) foreign policy should be based on man as he is and not as we would like him to be.
But moral principles are dangerous only when they are treated as absolutes, argues Frankel. Properly employed, "they are indispensable guidelines to action... they help us to decide what to do about dearly prized values in which our civilization has deep investments and our sense of identity and self-respect is involved."
"For better or worse, a foreign policy will not be effective over the long run if public opinion does not support it; and since public opinion cannot be expected to have an informed judgment on each specific decision taken day-by-day, its assent has to be to the general tendency and direction of the policy—to its guiding principles."
The bankruptcy of America's foreign policy today, under the guidance of the "realists," not to mention the incalculable harm done by leaders who played fast and loose with traditional American values—one measure of which is the distrust that currently infects the public opinion Frankel speaks of—suggests that we urgently need to get back to fundamental principles.
As he concludes, we Americans have not always lived up to the values we proclaim. "But when we are indifferent to them, we do violence to ourselves and destroy a principal source of our power in the world."

Little House is a happy place to be

High morale among the cast and crew is no big deal for a TV series that has become a hit. The "Little House on the Prairie" team turned that trick, however, even before the show's debut.

The series premiered on the NBC Television Network last September, and has consistently been ranked among the top 20 network television programs, according to data based on the Nielsen Television Index.

By September, though, the series' cast and crew had been working together three months (production began the previous June). From the start, it was a one-happy-family time.

When a magazine zapped the series early in the season as a hotbed of dissension, the "Little House" cast and crew fumed. They wanted to cry out "Wrong." But they didn't know how.

Finally someone came up with the idea of buying a full-page ad in a Hollywood publication for the entertainment world. The project was labeled "Top Secret" so it would come as a complete surprise to Michael Landon, series star and executive producer.

Said Marian Anderson, mother of Melissa Sue, who plays Mary Ingalls: "I was nominated treasurer. Cast contributions, all of which were totally voluntary, were to come to me. Within an hour after the word got out, I had a mountain of cash and checks on my table."

Soon thereafter the ad ran. It said:

"To Michael Landon and our associates, John Hawkins and Kent McCray (the series' producer and associate producer, respectively):

"It is a rare pleasure being a part of your team and to share in your many talents making 'Little House on the Prairie' the hit it is. Your devoted crew, staff and cast."

Below these words there were three columns of 89 names, alphabetically arranged. They included the Ingalls family and all the others seem as townsfolk of Walnut Grove, Minn.

They also included the entire behind-the-scenes contingent — David Rose, director of music; Ted Voigtlander and Haskell Boggs, directors of photography; William F. Claxton, Leo Penn and Lewis Allen... in short, everyone from Ed Abbott, the generator man, to Mary Yerkes, script supervisor.

This morale level is no accident. It starts at the top. Time and again, Landon has told interviewers that he loves to work but only on one condition — that the work is a happy experience.

Landon is spoiled. His 14-years as Little Joe Cartwright on NBC-TV's "Bonanza" series was just that — a happy experience.

"We used to have some terrific times," he said as he recalled instance after instance of between-scenes horseplay, especially with the late Dan Blocker. Said Landon: "He was a super guy."

Marcel Marceau is a chatterbox

By DICK KEINER
HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — I thought, when I interviewed Marcel Marceau, that the interview would be conducted in his favorite non-language, mime.

"Marceau would say, with his expressive gestures. "Or, perhaps, " "

But alas, such was not the case. Marceau is a good talker. In fact, he likes to talk. Maybe it's because he doesn't talk when he's working, so he rambles on when he's not working.

And he seems to prefer, above all other subjects, to talk about himself. He is far from reticent at discussing Marcel Marceau. He is not a particularly modest man.

"I play a week or two a year in Germany," he says, "but they love me so much I could stay six months."

"I average 300 performances a year," he says, "but I could play every night in the year, because so many people want to see me everywhere."

The immodesty is understandable. After all, Marcel Marceau took an ancient art that had fallen out of favor — the art of pantomime — and breathed new life into it. He brought mime back to popularity and is certainly the leading exponent of it today.

Everybody knows him. The waitress who took our order said she was disappointed when he spoke.

"I was hoping," she said, "that you'd give your order in pantomime."

He said it was the same all over the world. Everybody expects him to go into his act wherever he is. But pantomime is his business, not his nature.

His interest in miming things dates from his childhood in Strasbourg in the Alsace-Lorraine section of France. He was, from his earliest days, a movie buff.

His official biography states that he was devoted to the early screen mimes — Chaplin, Keaton, Langdon, Laurel and Hardy — but he doesn't mention them now.

"I used to go to every movie I could," he says. "My favorites were Douglas Fairbanks, Ethel Barrymore and the sisters Gish."

Whoever his favorites were, he early demonstrated his interest in, and ability at, imitating people and things with small and graceful gestures. He decided to make his career as a pantomimist.

He studied. At time, there were very few places where his chosen subject was offered, but he found one. Today, thanks to him, pantomime has had a renaissance and there are many schools and many practitioners of the art.

"Mime is now become very important in the theater," he says. "When I started, there was virtually none. But I resurrected the art."

It is not something that, once learned, can be forgotten. He is constantly watching people to see how they move and what gestures they use. His eyes roamed the room, studying the passing parade of people.

"See how that girl walks," he said, gesturing with his chin as a girl swept by. "She must be a model."

Perhaps part of him was studying the girl, for professional reasons, but another part was just looking. And he admitted it.

"I like to look at girls," he said. "I am first and always the Frenchman. If I ever stop noticing girls, I may as well drop dead."

When he began his professional career as a mime, acceptance was slow. At the time, there was little market for what he had to sell.

"I am now accepted in France," he says, "but it was very slow in coming. It is like the prophet without honor. I had to go abroad to achieve recognition at home. Germany was first to recognize me and then the United States. I give a great deal of credit to the United States critics and audiences for my ultimate success."

One facet of pantomiming you might not expect is that a mime must be an excellent athlete. Marceau says he has as good or better control of his body than a top athlete or a ballet dancer.

"I am always studying ballet and gymnastics," he says. "And I take very good care of my body. I watch what I eat very carefully. I drink nothing — oh, a little wine is good for you."

"I do not need any special program of exercising because my work is my exercise. I do my program 300 nights a year and that is sufficient exercise."

Now that he has achieved the top of his profession, he is looking for new worlds to conquer. He has made two movies — his latest was last year's "Shanks" — without notable success. But he wants to try again.

"I would like," he says, "to make five or six very good films. They would all be in mime — I would not take a part, no matter how good it was, if it were not in mime."

And he is now seriously considering dipping his graceful feet into the Las Vegas pool.

"It would be an experience," he says. "But I would not do it unless it was done right — it would have to be billed as 'Marcel Marceau in Las Vegas,' not 'Some Hotel Presents Marcel Marceau.' "

Facial Masks

Females and even males need to use some kind of a facial mask for our skin every week, to remove the dead skin that accumulates from the cells that die.

Elizabeth Arden has made a instantly refreshing mask — especially great for the people who have a heavy social schedule. The mask is a cool cream, quick pickup mask that helps revive refine and soothe tired skin in 2-3 minutes.

The ones who travel often, really like this. It's a big help in getting over jet-lag faster.

For the young women who want fast results, and for all women who like the luxury of specialized care for their skin. Excellent for all skin types.

A quick pickup mask that offers instant strategy for tired skin. Cools and refreshes in 2-3 minutes.

Revives and refines without drying. Quick and easy to apply and to remove. Leaves skin soft, smooth, instantly refreshed. Gently loosens excess oil and dirt. Leaves a glowing clean surface for makeup.

How to use it: Smooth a thin film over a clean skin avoiding eye area. Leave on 2-3 minutes. If skin is dry — remove cream with water moistened cotton pad, follow with toner.

Normal and oily skin splash with water, foam up and rinse away. Follow with appropriate toner.

Use it whenever you want a quick refreshing pickup. It's a marvelous spirit reviver before an evening out. It's the quickest way to look as though you'd been relaxing all day in the country. You can feel it begin to cool and refresh and revive your skin the instant you put it on.

It leaves a glowing, clean surface to help your makeup glide on effortlessly. It helps revive and refine with out drying because it is cream based. It will help make your makeup fresh and glowing all day long.

Another new mask, just arrived at Kline's Cosmetic Dept. is by Coty "Sweet Earth Mud." Arrives in medicated or mineral. The medicated is for troubled skin. Apply a generous layer to face and throat. Avoid eye area. The creamy formula will set, but not dry completely in 5-10 minutes. Splash off with warm then cool water. Pat dry. Recommended to be used two to three times a week.

The ingredients are on the jar. A "tonic" for the complexion. Slightly gritty, noticeably cooling, it provides extra stimulation and tightening so necessary for glowier, healthier looking skin.

The mineral contains vitamins A, D, & E. This creamy mask to be used by unblemished skins. To be used once a week, and as frequently required on oily areas.

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: I want you to tell me if there have been four or five different Cary Grants. He never seems to get any older. He should be fairly elderly by now. Is Cary Grant played by a number of different men? If not, how does he stay practically the same age?—PHYLLIS DREGGARS, Deland, Fla.

What an interesting idea. It might make a great plot for a movie someday. But, seriously, folks, there is only one Cary Grant. He's just the sort who ages gracefully. He's now 70 and, although his hair is gray, he still looks great, all one of him.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know if Tom Laughlin is making another movie to come after "The Trial of Billy Jack." If so, do you know when it might come out?—MEL-ODEE HARRIS, Williamsport, Pa.

Yes, there will be another Billy Jack film, which Tom and his wife, Delores Taylor, currently are preparing. Tentative title: "Billy Jack III." Plans are to shoot it in August and September, which means it will probably be released in the spring of '76.

DEAR DICK: I think James Cagney is the ultimate supremacy of Hollywood. I've loved this guy since I was a kid. Could you tell me how his health has been?—MRS. J. REID, Delta, B.C., Can.

He doesn't get to Hollywood much any more. The last time he was here I saw him and he seemed spry and in fine fettle. But he is 71 and I'm sure there must be some aches and pains, although apparently nothing serious.

DEAR DICK: On television's Hee-Haw, there is a comedienne who clowns, plays the banjo and who is always ironing in the skit with her slothful husband. I would like to know her name and other information about her, please.—J. D. HARRIS, Vinita, Okla.

That's Roni Stoneman, who is part of the famous (in country music circles) Stoneman family. She's grown up in the entertainment business and is originally from Smyrna, Tenn.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me what has happened to the TV show, Truth Or Confidence? I have cable but cannot get it on any channel. Is it off the air completely?—RUTH L. BENDER, Scottsbluff, Neb.

I'm sure you mean Truth Or Consequences, although Truth Or Confidence might be a better show. It's still on the air, but obviously your local stations have dropped it. You'll have to check with them to see if they have plans to put it back on the air again.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if Nancy Walker is Cher's mother?—HAZEL AMARI, Haverhill, Mass.

No, she's not. No relation.

DEAR DICK: Why haven't Deanna Durbin's movies been released to TV? Won't the studio release them?—MRS. W. MILLER, Fullerton, Calif.

They've come and gone. Universal tells me Deanna's movies have always been available—and still are. Any station can order them. There's just not much demand any more.

DEAR DICK: Who is the old store clerk on the Crest toothpaste commercials? I say he was in Peyton Place as Eli Carson. My husband says he's Jack Albertson.—BETTY KAUFFMAN, Syracuse, Ind.

You're both wrong. The clerk is played by that fine character actor, Arthur O'Connell.

Pamida announces cash dividend

Pamida, Inc., owner of 176 Gibson Discount Centers in middle America, will pay the first cash dividend in its history. J. D. Witherspoon, Pamida Chairman, said that the company would pay a semi-annual dividend of 5 cents per share, payable July 17, to stockholders of record on June 2, 1975. This indicates an annual dividend rate of 10 cents per share. The announcement was made at the company's annual meeting of stockholders in Omaha today.

Witherspoon also said that estimated sales for the first quarter were $43 million, an increase of 18 per cent. He said that the company would again aim for a minimum improvement in sales and earnings of 15 to 20 per cent. He reiterated Pamida's intention to carefully control its growth and to continue to emphasize the basics of retailing that have been responsible for Pamida's long-term success. In 1964 sales were $8,570,000, and in fiscal 1975 they exceeded $202,000,000.

Witherspoon gave additional details of the company's store expansion program. He said that Pamida would build 10 stores in new communities and would relocate 14 existing stores into new larger quarters. As a result, the company will add more than 400,000 square feet of selling space in fiscal 1976 and total company selling space will exceed 3 million square feet by the end of the year. Pamida is also planning an addition of more than 50,000 square feet to the company's Omaha Distribution Center.

Pamida's total employment in the 12 states where it now operates is 4,163.

Popeye nominated for emmy award

Popeye with Steve Hart, seen weekdays at 3 p.m. on Channel 44 (WSNS-TV), has been nominated for an Emmy award in the category of "Outstanding Achievement for Children's Programming for a Series."

The awards are granted by the Chicago Chapter of The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, an association dedicated to the advancement of television.

The final Emmy winners will be announced Sunday, June 15 at Chicago's 17th Annual Emmy Awards program.

The initial screening of entries in 19 categories was done by special screening committees assembled by the Chicago Chapter. The videotapes of the nominated entries will be viewed and judged by the San Francisco Chapter.

Channel 44's Popeye with Steve Hart features locally done segments of Hart and his puppet friends, Little K, Hector the Chicken, Bookie Worm and others.

Hart, a native of Chicago, received his B.A. in Speech and Theatre from Southern Illinois University and his Masters in Special Education from Northwestern Illinois University. In addition to producing and starring in Popeye with Steve Hart, he writes and produces the only puppet show on radio, "Open A New Window," a new reading series on WBEZ which is broadcast to and heard daily by over 25,000 children in Chicago Public Schools; "The Steve Hart and Little K Show" also on WLTD; and "Tillie the Tooth," an oral hygiene program for children, presented on WBEZ. Hart has also written a book which teaches special education teachers ventriloquism. After learning the process, the teacher takes a puppet to school and uses it in teaching emotionally disturbed and retarded children.

Popeye with Steve Hart is directed by Michael Torchia.

PROGRAM LISTINGS FOR THURSDAY, MAY 22

Hobo hilarities on Mickey Mouse week

It will be a carefree trek along the open road for a group of the Mouseketeers Monday, when Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse Club takes a hobo holiday on Channel 9.

Big Mouseketeer Roy Williams, as the chief roustabout, will lead the kids in song and dance around their tramp fire in a local dump setting. Mouseketeers Cubby and Karen will rhapsodize on the lazy life with "Bidin' My Time" and the hoity-toity society set will get a good-natured ribbing in a tramp ballet number from Mousekids Darlene, Eileen, and chorus.

The Mickey Mouse Club is televised weekdays afternoons from 4 to 4:30 p.m.

Monday (May 19) also sees Corky locked in jail by Durango Dude and the Nevada Kid as they make their escape and head for the hills in the next episode of "Corky and White Shadow."

Tuesday (May 20) — Guest comedian Gil Lamb will do a human giraffe act of acrobatic forward bends, long-legged dance struts, straight up and down high kicks and splits. A flock of sparrows aid in rescuing a baby chick from a marauding hawk in the cartoon, "Birds of a Feather."

Wednesday (May 21) — Corky and her friend Freddy alert a posse as to the whereabouts of the Durango Dude and the Nevada Kid, after which she goes in search of the missing dog, White Shadow, in the "Corky and White Shadow" episode. Mickey Mouse is determined to finish his debut performance as a violinist in spite of a broken instrument in the "Just Mickey" cartoon. "Learn from your failures and keep trying," Jimmie Dodd will instruct his friends in the day's Doddism.

Thursday (May 22) — The Mouseketeer Circus will go to the dogs and ponies as Bill Dedrick's Pranksters perform remarkable range of tricks in one of the most unusual acts of its kind. A colony of mosquitoes organize an attack against Mickey Mouse and friends in the cartoon, "Camping Out."

Friday (May 23) — Accordionist Paul Hertz of Belleville, New Jersey will prove to the Mouseketeers that his fingers are quicker than their eyes as he runs them across the keys and chords and produces some lively songs. Twins Betsy and Bunny Ives from Washington, D.C. will do some equally fast footwork in an Irish jig. The Durango Dude and the Nevada Kid are taken by surprise and escorted to jail by the little heroine and her dog in the concluding episode of "Corky and White Shadow."

The 1975 Saab. One of the few cars in America that gives you a choice of leaded or unleaded gasoline.

Almost every 1975 car sold in America will be required to use unleaded gasoline. Because nearly every new car will have something called a catalytic converter in its exhaust system.

The catalytic converter chemically cleans the exhaust in most new cars. And it does a pretty good job of helping to clean up the air around us.

But of course, there is a catch or two.

Catalytic converters are expensive. (They add from $150 to $300 to the cost of a new car.)

There has been some concern about heat build-up inside the converter (as much as 1,600 degrees F.) which is normally located beneath the floor around the driver's seat.

With the converter you can't use anything but unleaded gas (which is more expensive than regular).

And, for the present at least, unleaded gas is not as plentiful as leaded gas.

With most '75 cars, you have no choice.

But with Saab, you do. Because the '75 Saab meets or exceeds 1975 exhaust emission standards without the expense and inconvenience of a converter. And a Saab will give you about 27 miles per gallon on the highway.*

Test drive a Saab. The '75 car that gives you front-wheel drive, roll-over protection, rack-and-pinion steering, and freedom of choice.

It's what a car should be.

Female hosts to helm of emmy awards tonight

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — That electronic lovely, Emmy, reaches her 27th year on Monday, and she'll have 10 other glamor ladies to help her celebrate.

The awards of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences may seem as interminable as ever — 63 Emmies to be handed out in two hours plus — but at least the proceedings will look prettier.

"Instead of having a male comedian do a monologue and then toss off a few jokes with every award," says the show's producer, Paul Keyes, "we'll have ten ladies handling the ceremonies.

"Each runs the show for ten minutes. Each has opening remarks, then goes right to the awards. Everything neat; none of that dialogue about 'they didn't turn the cards right.'"

"I think it will be a treat for the audience — as well as the ladies. Jean Stapleton loves to dress up but she never gets a chance as Edith Bunker.

"Same with Beatrice Arthur and 'Maude.' And you never see Mary Tyler Moore except in her working clothes. Viewers should enjoy seeing how the stars look when they dress and do their hair in normal life."

Among the other hostesses: Lucille Ball, Carol Burnett, Cher, Teresa Graves, Michael Learned, Susan Saint James, Karen Valentine.

Paul Keyes is a TV veteran who has written and produced for Jack Paar, Dean Martin and "Laugh In." He is a jolly, chunky fellow who is trying to lose some of his girth on a crash diet.

The reason: he may be on-camera himself to collect an Emmy for his production of the American Film Institute tribute to Orson Welles.

The Emmies have always been the most award-laden of the awards telecasts; the Oscars have exactly one-third the number of categories.

The TV Academy's efforts to speed up the ceremonies have repeatedly been thwarted by professional egos. Again this year the Directors and Writers Guilds threatened to boycott the awards if the Academy carried out its plan to eliminate acceptance speeches by directors and writers. Eventually the Academy backed down on the proposal.

"There will be no acceptance speeches for the craft awards (costumes, art direction, etc.)," Keyes explained. "And I have insisted that there will be no surrogate acceptances on the show.

Yankee sails across Europe

"Yankee Sails Across Europe" records the remarkable travels of the clipper-bowed ketch, "Yankee," as it meanders more than 2,000 miles through France, Germany, the Netherlands, Denmark, and Belgium.

This National Geographic special narrated by Alexander Scourby will be presented on Channel 9 Saturday, from 6 to 7 p.m.

With Irving and Electra Johnson at the helm, "Yankee" begins her voyage by battling the swift currents of the Rhone River northwest of Marseille on France's northwest coast. Steering through hills and canal locks, the ketch sails into the tranquil Saone in the Vermont-like heartland of France. The Johnson's meet a barge family who are among the some 100,000 Europeans who make their home on boats and barges. Lock by lock, "Yankee" makes her way through the fields and flowers of France. By canal she enters the Moselle which flows into Germany past storybook castles. At Koblenz the Moselle joins the Rhine, the world's busiest river, where "Yankee" dodges a floating traffic jam of barges.

In the Netherlands, where canals are almost as common as roads, the Johnson's dock to watch the world championship canal-vaulting contest. "Yankee's" journey continues further north to Denmark, beyond Germany's Kiel Canal, to Copenhagen. Our voyagers go ashore to visit the famous Tivoli amusement park.

The return voyage south toward Paris proves hazardous. In the Frisian Islands in the North Sea off Germany, "Yankee" runs aground. Her steel hull saves her from damage, but she careens high and dry on tide-exposed sand. As the tide begins to race inland, the Johnson's see the water trap a hiker who had wandered too far out at low tide.

Civilisation approaches 16th century

The "Civilisation" series moves north as the 15th Century comes to an end and Gutenberg's printing press becomes a major influence during Chapter 6, "Protest and Communication," to be telecast Saturday, at 8:30 a.m. on Channel 9.

The protest is that of Martin Luther and the breakdown of religious unity in France and Germany. The communication is concerned with printing and the writings of Luther.

Could you use four more exemptions on your Federal income taxes?

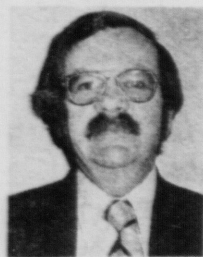

A husband and wife interested in a tax-deductible retirement program may now qualify for a Metropolitan Individual Retirement Annuity (IRA).

A working couple with no pension plan other than Social Security may each have a separate IRA and may both contribute up to the maximum based on their separate earnings: 15%, or up to $1,500—which-ever is less. Together, they may annually contribute as much as $3,000 to their tax-sheltered retirement fund, if their earnings permit the maximum contribution by each.

And even if only a husband or wife is eligible, as a couple, they still enjoy added tax benefits with only one member of the family enrolled in an IRA.

Call me if you're interested in discussing the possibility of the equivalent of two or four more exemptions on your Federal income tax.

Soft hats set mood for summer

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEW YORK — (NEA) — To say that hats are back is the understatement of the season. The "hatline, USA" has become the "hatline" to the great fashion looks for spring and summer.

Hats in a tantalizing variety of new shapes and textures have propelled millinery to the head of the fashion parade.

The Millinery Institute recently presented six major trends and silhouettes. All of the hats displayed captured the flattering mood of softness and femininity in the new fashions.

Straw hats in an exciting range of brim sizes and trims provided a fashion spectrum of their own.

Outstanding in this grouping were the softly flattering shapes of natural straw that offered an endless variety of tempting straw weaves, set off with sweetly nostalgic ribbon streamers or dainty flower clusters.

Gone in the coming season's fashions is the overly casual, messy or abrasive look and smart girls are reading the signals that the chic, gentle and well-groomed look is here to

Tips on care of house plants

Chances are that insects will hitchhike into your house-plant collection on a new plant, even if you buy from the same shop all the time. Don't take chances. Spray the newly-purchased plants before you add them to your collection. Also, keep a new plant away from the others for a week or so to make sure it doesn't have any pests. If it passes your isolation test, then add it to the collection.

Excellent plants can be grown in both clay and plastic pots. What matters is how you grow the plant. Clay pots demand more water because of seepage through the side of the pot. On the other hand, overwatering can occur in plastic pots, since they need less water. Clay-potted plants are also more stable because of the weight of the base, while plastic is much easier to clean.

Palmyra Unit bus tour

The Palmyra Homemakers Extension Unit sponsored a recent "unit's choice" bus trip to Lamb's Farm, Libertyville.

The group also toured the Berggren Traylor Corporation's shop in Libertyville, where graniteware is made, and the afternoon was spent at Long Grove, a village settled in the early 1800's by a group of German farmers. With the development of larger cities near the village, it declined during the 1920's and 1930's, but early in 1940 the old-fashioned buildings were restored and occupied, and today the village has many unique shops.

Planning the "unit's choice" tour were Mrs. Laurence Schott, Mrs. William Nolte and Mrs. Oscar Strook.

Young Mothers' Club meeting

Members of the Young Mothers' Club were Wednesday night guests of Mrs. Allen Cumberland when Miss Kathryn Kasarskis spoke on the "Montessori School."

Miss Kasarskis explained how the system of teaching children originated and the progress it has made. The Montessori environment encourages a child to exercise his ability in making choices, and the speaker announced that a Montessori School would open in Dixon soon.

Mrs. Charles Bushman and Mrs. Larry Reed were appointed to serve on the auditing committee during a business session conducted by Mrs. James Green, president, and final plans were made for the annual end-of-the-year party scheduled for May 28 in the Aztec Room, Sterling, when a 6:30 p.m. social hour will precede a 7 p.m. dinner. Past members of the club are welcome to attend the event, and reservations and cancellations are to be made by May 23 with Mrs. Alvah Drew Jr., 284-6104.

Plans were also discussed for the club's annual picnic to be held June 11 in Lowell Park, and introduced as new officers for 1975-76 were Mrs. Donald Shehorn president; Mrs. Cumberland, vice president; Mrs. Larry Chidley, secretary; Mrs. Edward Reuter, treasurer, and Mrs. Stanley Miller, historian.

June 2 was announced as the last day of school, and the annual trip to Chicago for the seventh and eighth grade students was announced for May 26.

Timber Lake Playhouse auditions

MT. CARROLL — Theatre technicians and early-arriving actors are assisting the contractors building the new Timber Lake Playhouse in preparation for the June 19 opening.

From 2 to 5 p.m. June 1 playhouse directors will audition persons interested in offering time and talent for the summer's musical presentations. Vocalists, dancers and instrumentalists will be needed, and for the final musical, "Gypsy," at least four young boys and two young girls age eight to 12 must be cast. Young performers interested in these roles should prepare a song and a tap dance routine and bring sheet music to the audition. An accompanist will be provided.

Rehearsals for the opening show, "Carousel," will begin June 8, and the show will run from June 19 to June 29. Rehearsals for "The Mikado," which will be presented from July 16-27, will begin July 3, and "Gypsy" rehearsals will begin Aug. 1.

Performers interested in appearing in these productions are urged to come to the Karyn Kupciet Playhouse at Shimer College, Mt. Carroll June 1. Singers and dancers will register upstairs, and instrumentalists will register downstairs. Persons who cannot be present for the audition, and those who have performed at the playhouse during recent seasons may express their desire to be available by writing P.O. Box 29, Mt. Carroll, 61053.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Two of my pictures have suddenly warped. These are not dime store pictures nor are they original oils. I have never washed them with water. They stick out from the wall at least an inch. I cannot get them straight on the wall and they look terrible. It is too costly to reframe them and I do hope to get some help from someone. — ANDREA

DEAR ANDREA — I presume from your letter that these pictures do not have glass over them but are not sure whether they are printed on paper or have an oil finish on canvas. If yours are oils done on canvas that is fastened over wood stretchers new stretchers can be bought at an art store and the pictures remounted on them to be flat again. If they are printed on paper or a light cardboard put in the frames with glass and enough heavy backing to push and keep them flat against the glass. Most hardware stores sell a spray adhesive that could be used on a heavy backing. Smooth the picture carefully over that. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — A Pet Peeve of mine is to observe a waitress scratching her head or handling her hair and then serving food to the customers. — MRS. M. S.

DEAR MRS. M. S. — I once went into a new quick-order type restaurant, saw a counter boy cleaning his ear and then go on serving food. I have never been inside the door of that eatery again. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — This is the time of year to think about presents for next Christmas. Many people get more joy out of giving than receiving. With the present high cost of everything and less money to spend this is almost impossible to do at Christmas time. The solution is to begin now. Keep a big cardboard box in a dry place to hold the things you now start to accumulate for next Christmas. Many simple things such as pot holders, aprons, appliance covers and so on can be made during the coming months. Many good but inexpensive items can be bought at garage and rummage sales. Watch for special sales in the stores. Tape a piece of paper on the outside of the box. Each time you add a gift write it on the list. Meanwhile, if a birthday, anniversary or other special event arises you have gifts to choose from. You have no idea what a nice feeling you will have when the holiday season approaches and you see that big box of things that have been painlessly assembled throughout the year. — LYNNE

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old boy who has two problems. My aunt and my uncle.

They live 200 miles from here and come every month and stay for a week. I have to give up my bedroom and sleep on the floor because they are "guests."

This aunt and uncle have two children who live in this town and I don't see why they can't go stay with them.

When I complain to my mom and dad they say I am at "that age." Some answer. What do you think about a kid getting treated this way? — Displaced Person

Dear D.P.: If you were asked to give up your room for a couple weeks at Christmas or Easter, or for an occasional weekend, I'd say O.K. But according to my figures you are spending 25 per cent of your nights sleeping on the floor. I don't think it's fair.

How about a pull-out sofa or a double cot for your aunt and uncle since they are such frequent guests? Suggest it — and quote me. (P.S. You might also quote the wise man who said, "Relatives, like fish, begin to stink after three days.")

Dear Ann Landers: I was both amused and infuriated when I read the letters from guys who lambasted "In Tact," the 18-year-old virgin. They called her a "tease" and a few other not-so-nice names. Too bad about those poor "tortured" guys. I know all their sad stories because I, too, am an 18-year-old virgin who has been subjected to the same sales talk.

I'm no dog. I've had plenty of dates with great-looking guys and I'm not a prude, either. But I decided when I listened to guys talk about how they had scored with Alice the first night, Mazie was a pushover and Nell was a sure thing — that these girls were dumb bunnies and I wasn't going to be added to the list. Quiet research revealed that over half of my ninth grade class had "lost it at the Astor." This information came from the girls as well as the guys. It made me sick.

When the chicks get wise to the fact that sex for most teenage dudes is an ego trip, they'll be able to say "no" a lot easier. As for those sex maniacs who get revved up at the sight of an ankle and give three girls a week the "I love you" bit, all I have for them is disgust. It's a rotten way to unload pent-up energy. Sign me — A Big V Who Is Enjoying Life

Dear V.: You sound like a solid lady who needs no advice from me. In fact, I thank you for giving some. After all, you're 18. I'm a 56-year-old antique. What do I know?

Dear Ann Landers: Under what circumstances would it be proper to invite guests to attend a wedding and exclude them from the reception?

I know of a couple who drove 300 miles to attend a wedding and when they arrived they discovered a reception was being held after the wedding. They had not been invited. What does this sound like to you, Ann? — Perplexed

Dear Perp: IT sounds like a gross misunderstanding. The reverse is far more feasible. Guests are often omitted from the wedding (especially if it's the second time around for the bride or groom) but they are invited to the reception. I can't imagine inviting a couple to come from out of town for the ceremony and not offer them the sociability and refreshments that follow.

Indians valued lovely 'sky stone'

By JEAN BARNES

To many the turquoise stone is synonymous with Indian jewelry. Others, more romantically inclined compare turquoise with the blueness of heaven and call it the "Sky Stone."

Charles Kidwell, collector-dealer in Wichita, Kan., views turquoise as more than a fad. It is a passion which the Kidwell family shares. His wife, Donna, collects beads and his daughter Debbie and son, Dale, are active in the family business.

"Turquoise is made up of copper, aluminum, phosphorus and hydrogen and oxygen as water," Kidwell explained. "It is usually found in open pit copper mines. The stone tossed it aside as being of little value." That has changed over the years until now turquoise is recognized as one of the best of investments, ranking with diamonds.

For more than 2,000 years Persia has been the major source of turquoise. The standards for Persian turquoise are different from those for turquoise found in North America. The Persian product must be completely free of matrix and a uniform robin's egg blue, while the American Indian has shown a partiality to stones bearing matrix in their jewelry craft. Matrix is the particles of surrounding rock formations found in the turquoise. Matrix color can be white, brown, reddish brown and black. The most highly prized is the black "spiderweb" matrix, he explained.

Most turquoise is mined in Nevada, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona in the United States. "A really experienced dealer can often tell you what mine a piece comes from," Kidwell said. Two mines having the greatest attraction for buyers are Bisbee and Morenci, both located in Arizona. Kidwell said that stones from these mines are very firm, of good color and often have pyrite which some think enhances its beauty.

Although the turquoise industry in the United States is undergoing a self-examination to set uniform standards for merchandising, at this point there is a welter of opinion as to what constitutes good turquoise.

With few exceptions, untreated turquoise will turn from blue to green in the course of time. There are several methods of treating turquoise to stabilize the color. The most successful is to impregnate it with a clear plastic which hardens to form a permanent

Opening lead — 9♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Hard Luck Joe won the diamond lead and wasted no time with the next couple of plays. They were a trump to dummy and a club back toward his hand.

East played low and after a little thought Joe played his jack of clubs. West plunked on the queen and shifted to a trump. This left Joe with three clubs in his hand and only two trumps in dummy to ruff them with and he wound up in his usual spot—the ash can.

"Dart, darn and deleted," muttered Joe. "Both club honors wrong and West had to lead a trump. I'd play backgammon only my luck would probably be just as bad at that game."

If West's opening lead had been a trump, instead of a diamond, Joe would have been entitled to complain. That would have been real hard luck. After the diamond opening, Joe had no one to blame but himself. He should have led a low club from his hand at trick two. After that play there would have been no way for the defense to get in two rounds of trumps; Joe would get to ruff his last three clubs in dummy and the sun would shine.

$300,000 lottery prize goes to Granite City man

CHICAGO (AP)—William P. Yarbrough of Granite City, Ill., is the latest $300,000 bonanza winner of the Illinois lottery.

Robert W. Tenney of Paris, Ill., won $50,000.

Yarbrough was not present for Thursday's drawing, broadcast live by WGN-TV in Chicago. He was represented by actor Leonard Nimoy, who helped with the drawing.

Yarbrough could not be reached by lottery officials Thursday before the drawing.

"Do you suppose he would have come if he knew he'd win $300,000?" Nimoy asked.

He will receive the money in 15 annual payments of $20,000 each.

Tenney accepted his winnings without apparent emotion. Asked what he'd do with the money, he mumbled: "Catch up on bills, I guess."

For the Spring Stampede, winning number was 819899.

Ticket colors were keyed to the value of cars to be given away to those with the winning number.

Persons holding a black ticket with the winning number will get a $5,000 car. Those with pumpkin tickets will receive a $4,000 car and green tickets bring a $3,000 car.

Calling long distance will be easier and faster for Dixon area residents after July 19 when new equipment, costing approximately $385,500, is put into service by Central Telephone Company of Illinois.

As a result of the installation of a new, electronic toll ticketing system and related equipment, Centel customers in Dixon, Harmon, Nelson and Grand Detour will enjoy the convenience of a one-digit direct dial access code of "1" rather than the present three-digit access code.

Single-party and two-party customers of Centel will be able to make their long distance calls direct by dialing the single digit access code of "1", plus the area code if outside the 815 area. The calling number will be automatically identified by

Rigney sees progress on malpractice bill

SPRINGFIELD — State Representative Harlan Rigney (R-Freeport) said today that progress is being made toward developing legislation concerning doctors' malpractice suits that will ultimately benefit patients.

Physicians in Illinois are now paying insurance companies extremely high premiums for protection in the event of malpractice suits, and rates are skyrocketing. In an insurance rate schedule announced this week by the Illinois Medical Association, hikes of between 46 and 89 per cent will go into effect July 1.

Under the present rate structure, some doctors pay as much as $3,900 annually for $1 million worth of coverage.

"Malpractice insurance premiums paid by doctors," Representative Rigney said, "are inevitably reflected in higher medical costs for the patients."

Elements of legislation designed to curtail rising medical costs due to high malpractice insurance rates would:

—establish panels of judges, doctors and lawyers in each judicial circuit to review malpractice claims against doctors;

—set a time limit for filing malpractice suits; and —establish a new Medical Disciplinary Board that would give the medical profession better control over its members and more authority to weed out dishonest and incompetent health care practitioners.

"The panel of judges, doctors and lawyers would recommend damage awards, but plaintiffs would still be able to go to court if they deemed the award unsatisfactory," Representative Rigney said.

"I think we will be able to develop a legislative package," Representative Rigney said, "that will be beneficial and fair to both doctors and patients."

Centel will go to one-digit access code the ticketing system and the call will be routed directly to the distant party.

Customers with four-party rural service will also use the new single-digit access code of "1" plus the area code if outside the 815 area. To further insure billing accuracy for four-party rural customers, an operator will ask for the calling number after the full number has been dialed. The call will then be routed directly to the desired distant party.

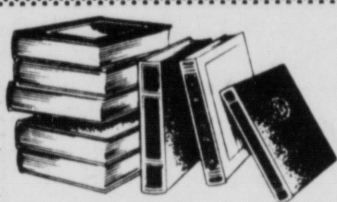

The new equipment will also provide more precise timing of Selective Calling Service, a special long distance package which can, depending upon usage, save customers money on calls within 28 miles of their home exchange.

"These changes are part of Centel's modernization and upgrading of service," says James Radke, Centel's Commercial Operations Superintendent in Dixon. "In coming weeks, we'll be notifying all our customers of the new dialing instructions through letters, newspapers and bill inserts."

The new ticketing system is part of Centel's $1 million construction and modernization program for the Dixon area during 1975. Other improvements include the $413,500 addition of 800 lines and related equipment in the Dixon Central Office; a $16,600 toll test panel for faster and more accurate testing of long distance circuits; and $140,500 for the expansion and modernization of cable facilities to provide adequate facilities to serve the growing area.

Completing a wire connection on Centel's new direct distance toll ticketing machine is Ray Cataldo, a Stromberg-Carlson technician. Installation of the new equipment, manufactured by Stromberg-Carlson, required more than 90,000 individual wire connections. Among the benefits Dixon residents will enjoy after the equipment is put in service July 19 will be a one-digit direct dial access code of "1."

In designating May 11-17 as Family Week in Illinois, we hope to focus attention on the many agencies and services in each community working to strengthen and support families, explains Mirl W. Whitaker, executive director of the Child Care Association of Illinois, which instigated the idea.

These children only come from the State of Illinois. Twenty-six full time and six part time staff members serve the needs of these children.

Chapel of the Holy Cross

(SEDONA, ARIZONA)

Any traveler to Arizona or the Grand Canyon will find it most rewarding to journey just 23 miles south of Flagstaff on Alt. Rt. 89. The scene unfolds into an awesome spectacle of unsurpassed grandeur Oak Creek Canyon and the Chapel of the Holy Cross: a precious gem in a setting of absolute solitude! Here massive red-sandstone cliffs and gorges all seem to pay tribute to this lonely, lovely edifice.

Strangely enough, what began as a dream to erect the world's largest church in Budapest in 1937 became this unique shrine in Arizona in 1956

In the early 1930's the noted sculptor, Marguerite Brunswig Staude, was inspired to build a majestically - modern contemporary church with the cross as the dominant concept. Aided and encouraged by the world-renowned architect, Frank Lloyd Wright, plans were finalized in 1937 for a gigantic 500 ft. edifice to rise on a hill above the Danube River. The beginning of World War II ended these grand aspirations.

A flicker of hope for the endeavor smoldered for years but finally leaped to life with the realization that the cherished dream could become reality in Oak Creek Canyon in Arizona.

Consequently, after monumental efforts - aided by the personal recommendations of Senator Barry Goldwater - to secure necessary clearances for construction on government property, design plans were developed in 1953 and 1954. Work actually began in April, 1955 on the site: a spectacular 250-ft. high, twin-pinnacled red-sandstone spur jutting outward from a thousand-foot solid rock wall. Completion of the structure was realized just one year later.

Rising boldly 90 feet from bedrock, the cross completely dominates the shrine since, with its mammoth windows, it forms the whole front wall and appears to be visible from any angle except the rear. The entire edifice seemingly hangs from the cross, relying on its support inside as well as outside.

Although the chapel's natural setting abounds in grandeur and beauty, another magnificent thrill awaits within. Two enormous anodized aluminum doors swinging inward welcome visitors to an unbelievable panorama. The expansive glass front frames the distant, vast, eroded landscape in hues unattainable by man - providing "God's very own stained glass windows."

Again, the huge cross dominates the scene - not detracting from nature's beauty but enhanced by it. Even the elegant black marble altar is dependent upon the cross for support. But, above the altar, nailed to the inside of the great cross itself, is the most startling feature of the chapel: the large blackened metal figure of "Christ of the Atomic Age" - crucified for us grotesque and shocking to some, but compellingly thought-provoking and unforgettablely impressive to all. Christ's body is distorted, burned and tormented, superbly epitomizing the Supreme Agony as he pleads so eloquently for mankind's love and understanding to today's rather chaotic environment.

This chapel, dedicated to Mrs. Staude's parents, Marguerite and Lucien Brunswig, was donated to the Spiritual Life Institute of America for research in theology, philosophy and the humanities, and as a contemplative and retreat center.

Sauk Valley loses and wins

By JIM FOX
Telegraph Sports Writer
CHADWICK—Sauk Valley pounded out nine hits in collecting nine runs to defeat Clinton 9-6, here, Thursday night, enabling the Redmen to advance in the Sauk Valley Invitational Baseball Tournament.

In earlier action, Highland downed Clinton 4-1, while McHenry squeezed by Sauk 3-1 in the double elimination tournament. Clinton was ousted from further action by its loss to Sauk.

Jim Baumgart started for the Redmen against Clinton and was rocked for five runs on seven hits in the righthander's four innings of work. Baumgart received the victory, his first of the season, as Sauk retained a lead and John O'Brien came through with three innings of clutch relief pitching.

The Huskers jumped on Baumgart for three runs in the first frame as Jon Galloway and Dennis Hege singled and scored, ahead of a towering home run off the bat of first baseman Gary Lueders. A dropped foul fly Lueders a second chance and he took advantage of it as he teed off on a Baumgart fast ball and shot it over the right field fence.

Clinton added a fourth tally in the second inning, on a walk and two singles, before Sauk came to life and pushed five runs across to take the lead.

Home-town boy Jerry Jansen, who went four for eight in the two games, opened the second with a sharp single to left. One out later, O'Brien reached on an error and Randy Ellmaker coaxed a base on balls to load the bases. Doug Mitchell forced Jansen at the plate for out number two, before designated hitter Bruce VanDeVelde singled home a par. Mitchell trotted home on an infield error and Craig Robinson plated the final two runs of the inning on a double to left center.

Sauk added two more in the fourth on base hits by Mitchell and Randy Paisley and an error on the Clinton shortstop, as Gary Yoder booted the ball far enough to allow both runners to score.

A sixth inning wild pitch plated Mitchell and an RBI single off the bat of catcher Gary Stewart rapped up the Redmen's scoring, as O'Brien saved the victory for Baumgart with three innings of solid relief pitching.

Randy McNally gave up seven hits but allowed only one run as the McHenry Scots brushed by Sauk 3-1 in the second game of the Sauk Valley Tournament. Mike Philpot blasted a two-run homer off losing pitcher O'Brien and McNally aided his own cause with a solo shot in the third inning.

Sauk stranded 11 men and hit into two double plays to stifle bases-loaded scoring opportunities. Stewart scored the lone run on a ground out RBI by Robinson in the seventh frame as the Redmen were pushed into the loser's bracket with the loss to the Scotsmen.

The Sauk Valley Tournament wraps up today, with the Highland-McHenry game scheduled at noon. Sauk meets the loser of this contest at 3 p.m., with Stewart being the probable pitcher. The winner of this game will meet the winner of the noon game for the championship at 6 p.m. However, if the loser's bracket team beats the winner's bracket team, another contest will be held at 9.

First loss takes 22 minutes

Rangers drop two

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

It took the Milwaukee Brewers 22 minutes Thursday night to accomplish what they couldn't do in 3 hours and 50 minutes the previous night—beat the Texas Rangers.

After battling 14 innings and nearly four hours to a 2-2 standoff Wednesday night—and one hour into Thursday morning before an American League curfew forced a suspension of play—the Brewers and Rangers returned to pick up where they left off. It took just one more inning for Milwaukee to emerge with a 3-2 triumph when Texas reliever Jackie Brown walked two batters, committed a two-out error to load the bases and then hit Don Money with a two-strike pitch, forcing in the winning run.

Then, they went at it again for 2 hours, 36 minutes in the regularly scheduled contest. Milwaukee won that one, too, with Hank Aaron contributing a three-run homer and a sacrifice fly.

Elsewhere in the AL, the Kansas City Royals blanked the Boston Red Sox 3-0 behind Steve Busby's four-hitter and the Minnesota Twins edged the Cleveland Indians 7-6 on Rod Carew's ninth-inning single.

In the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies swept a two-night doubleheader from the Cincinnati Reds 6-3 and 5-3, while the Chicago Cubs downed the Houston Astros 4-2. The Atlanta Braves were rained out at Montreal in the fourth inning with a 4-1 lead on two-run homers by Darrell Evans and Dave May.

Aaron's 360-foot blast, his fourth of the season, capped a four-run fifth inning which included a run-scoring triple by Bobby Mitchell, who also homered and singled, and gave the Brewers a 7-1 lead.

Pete Broberg, dealt away by the Rangers last December following a 0-4 season, earned the victory with last-out help from Ed Rodriguez. Sixto Lezcano also homered for Milwaukee while Roy Howell, Toby Harrah and Mike Hargrove connected for Texas.

Royals 3, Red Sox 0
The Royals scored an unearned run in the sixth off Boston ace Luis Tiant, 3-5. With two out, Hal McRae was hit by a pitch after his foul pop dropped between Boston catcher Bob Montgomery and first baseman Carl Yastrzemski in a mix-up.

McRae attempted to steal second and appeared out by 20 feet on Montgomery's throw. However, shortstop Rick Burleson dropped the ball while attempting the tag and was charged with an error. After John Mayberry walked, Harmon Kilbreath blooped a single to shallow right-center, scoring McRae.

Twins 7, Indians 6
Reliever Jim Perry walked Steve Braun to start the ninth and pinch runner Dan Ford was sacrificed to second. After an intentional walk to Danny Walton, Dave LaRoche came on and fanned Tony Oliva but Carew then laced his game-winning hit to center field.

Phillies 6-5, Reds 3-3
Dave Cash beat third baseman Pete Rose's throw to the plate on Garry Maddox' grounder in the seventh inning of the nightcap to break a tie. The Phillies took the opener when pinch hitter Ollie Brown's three-run homer off Don Gullett with two out capped a four-run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Queckboerner and Mike Schneider picked up an RBI each in the first inning with Mike Schneider getting a pair in the third on a double. Tim Schneider's single plated the fifth run with Ritenour adding the sixth tally on a single.

The Eagles pushed across three runs in the first as Jahn and Kirchhofer singled. Delhotal tripled both runners in and scored himself on an error on the relay.

Franklin Center now hosts Waterman for a doubleheader next Wednesday.

Cubs beat Astros

CHICAGO (AP) — When Tim Hosley says he hasn't had a chance in the major leagues, you'd better believe it. Now that he is getting a chance, he's making the most of it.

The 28-year-old catcher obtained from the Oakland A's smashed a two-run, tie-breaking double in the eighth inning Thursday to give the Chicago Cubs and Rick Reuschel a 4-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

It was Hosley's 11th game in the 30 the Cubs have played this season. In four previous seasons in the majors—two with Detroit and two with Oakland—Hosley appeared in a total of 39 games.

"I have had to carry the label of not being a good catcher," said Hosley who gradually appears to be edging out Steve Swisher for the regular Cub catching job.

"It's not true, I think I am a good catcher. But when I was in the minors I always emphasized my hitting more than my catching and people thought I wasn't a good catcher.

"It's great to be with a club that wants to use you," said Hosley. "They told me you haven't had a chance to play so let's see what you can do."

Manager Jim Marshall said he was impressed with Hosley during spring training.

"I liked his attitude," said Marshall. "He was willing to work and when he didn't play he didn't pout."

Chicago Winds want Joe

CHICAGO (AP) — The World Football League has a new Chicago franchise and the team's owner says it has a good chance of signing quarterback Joe Namath to an estimated $4 million contract.

Babe Parilli was named Thursday as head coach and general manager of the new team, the Chicago Winds, by Eugene C. Pullano, a real estate and insurance executive heading up a group of local businessmen who invested in the successor to the defunct Chicago Fire.

Pullano took a ballot from newsmen to decide the team's name from six choices and the "Winds" won. Team colors and emblems will be chosen later, he said.

Pullano said he met Wednesday in Chicago with Namath's agent to discuss a contract for the superstar who became a free agent this year from the New York Jets.

"The Namath situation is moving along and I think we have come probably close to agreement," he said at a news conference. "We have meetings with him early next week and I would say the odds of getting him are about 51 to 49 in our favor."

Pullano said the the agreement would be "around the $4 million mark over a three-year period."

Under the contract, Namath must play in Chicago for a minimum of two years after which he could go to New York as part owner of a WFL franchise there if one should become available, Pullano said. The $4 million would be paid by the league, not by the Chicago franchise alone, he added.

Pullano said his franchise will succeed where the Chicago Fire failed financially last season because "our operation is based on a solid business principle and funding of the entire operation in advance."

Parilli, a former teammate and close friend of Namath in New York, last year was head coach of the New York Stars of the WFL which became the Charlotte Hornets during the season.

The Winds signed him to a multi-year contract as general manager and head coach.

The professional playing career of Parilli, 45, included stops at Green Bay and Cleveland of the National Football League; Ottawa of the Canadian Football League and Oakland of the American Football League. He led the Boston Patriots to the AFL Eastern Division title in 1963.

Parilli was backup to Namath with the Jets in the team's 1968 championship season.

FRANKLIN GROVE — The Franklin Center Eagles opened their 1975 baseball season by dropping both ends of a double header to the Chadwick Silver Streaks, here, Thursday. Chadwick took the first game 4-2 (despite being out 7-4) and captured the second contest 6-3 in five innings.

"Overall, I was pleased with the way we looked considering we have had only one practice with all the guys there," Dennis Kessel, Franklin Center coach stated. "Chadwick is now 13-1 for the season so I don't think we did too badly especially with most of the guys playing other sports."

The Silver Streaks opened the scoring in the first game as Bob Bryant walked in the initial frame. Tim Schneider singled and a double steal put runners on second and third. John Queckboerner then lofted a sacrifice fly for the RBI.

Chadwick made it 3-0 in the third as Schneider and Queckboerner walked and pulled a double steal. Mike Schneider's single plated the two runs. A walk, a eild pitch and a Tim Schneider single gave the visitors their final tally.

Franklin Center got one run in the third and another in the fourth. Jim Roof singled and went to second as John Kirchhofer was safe on an error. Pete Soria's double drove in the tally. Rick Baker plated the last Eagle run with Scott Delhotal scoring after getting a walk, being sacrificed to second and stealing third.

Rod Ritenour was the winning pitcher with Kirchhofer getting the loss. Chadwick collected 11 hits in the second game to saddle Jeff Jahn with the loss. Ritenour went three-for-three while Queckboerner and Mike Schneider had two safeties each.

Queckboerner and Mike Schneider picked up an RBI each in the first inning with Mike Schneider getting a pair in the third on a double. Tim Schneider's single plated the fifth run with Ritenour adding the sixth tally on a single.

The Eagles pushed across three runs in the first as Jahn and Kirchhofer singled. Delhotal tripled both runners in and scored himself on an error on the relay.

Franklin Center now hosts Waterman for a doubleheader next Wednesday.

"So could you please repeat some of your comments for the sake of my students and the millions of others around the country who read your 'Worry Clinic'?"

Music Psychology
Suppose you take a kindergarten group of youngsters and then expose them for the first time to a new piece of music.

At its initial rendition, it is practically a melodic skeleton, for it has no emotional memories clustered around it.

But suppose we divide the kindergarten class into three separate groups in three different rooms and then let them all listen to that same melody. Let group No. 1 be repeatedly stuck with needles as long as the music is played.

Group 2 will meanwhile be told pathetic stories about how a pet puppy or kitten is run over by an atuo, till they grow tearful.

Group No. 3 will meanwhile dance happily and be fed candy or ice cream.

By duplicating this experiment on future days, we "condition" those three groups to widely different reactions when they hear that same melody in future years.

Group No. 1, even 10 or 20 years later, will react with pain when that familiar tune is played.

Group No. 2 will feel sad and tearful.

Group No. 3 will bubble over with joy and be in the mood for fun.

And this is exactly how our emotions ultimately become entwined with music!

Vance Packard wrote a splendid book entitled "The Hidden Persuaders" which likewise shows how we subconsciously develop likes and dislikes for merchandise.

Remember, at the first rendition, children feel neutral toward music, whether it be jazz or classical.

For it isn't the arrangement of the musical notes or even the tempo that count most, but the associated emotions that were in effect during the early exposure to the new tunes.

So music directors of churches should wise up to the folly of using New choral arrangements and STRANGE melodies.

For they leave the congregation inert, restless and even bored, especially if the choirs are in recessed alcoves where they aren't even visible to the audience.

It's far better to have the choir in plain view, for the men in the congregation can then at least size up the women singers with reference to which ones they'd rather ask for a date, so the choir then will get a little attention, but NOT to its music!

Lyrics and melodies unfamiliar to the CONGREGATION are thus almost a total loss as regards working up the audience's lofty emotions to furnish a nurtured and homogeneous group of listeners for the pastor!

Kindergarten children don't even know how to keep time to music!

So they not only must learn to notice the accented beat for their "Left, Right, Left" marching, but must have their entire emotional moods "conditioned," or the tunes will remain "flat" and uninspiring.

Despite this simple psychological dissection of music, most Music Directors still ignore the primary purpose of church music, which is to revive and resurrect the lofty emotions previously conditioned only to FAMILIAR hymns!

QUESTION & ANSWER PERIOD
QUESTION — Mr. Shiaras do you ever rerun some of your old Questions from your past ads?
ANSWER — I Haven't up until you popped the question but with reruns so popular on T.V. here goes.
QUESTION — Mr. Shiaras dear auntie passed away recently leaving sis and I a complete set of Touraine flown blue. I decided to take the twelve cups and saucers and all the covered dishes while sis got the plates etc. back and forth until fairly divided. My cups are marked Semi-Portland Rd. No. 329815 Henry Alcock. Could you date this set?
ANSWER — Dear Oklahoma City first let me commend you for dividing the set fair and square. H-a-a-urumph!! The registry number falling under 360,000 indicates your set to be circa 1883-1900. Numbers above 360,000 indicates the set to be in the 1900's. Josiah Wedgwood II invented the flown blue method in 1820. The flowing of the color hid many imperfections. The darker blues date earlier in the 19th century while the lighter examples date closer to the 20th century. Touraine flown blue in particular has out striped the bluest blue chip stock increasing in price 600 per cent to 800 per cent in a short eight years! ©

There's a whole lot of YOU goes into a GBH Home
You see, we don't have any stock or standard homes. Every one of our new home designs is the result of an analysis of a particular family's tastes and needs. Before drawing a plan, we must know your family size; your attitudes toward use of space; your land and its configuration; and, finally, just what exterior styling features reflect your taste. Our designers know how to make your dollar go as far as possible.
The YOU in your GBH Home doesn't stop at the basic structure. After your planning session with the designer, you can move on to the GBH Home Center, where there's a fantastic range of choices for the interior treatment of your home: literally hundreds of square feet of kitchens, carpeting, baths, paneling, lighting, and right down to your choice of hardware.
If you'd like to know more about how GBH takes the compromise out of purchasing a new home, mail the enclosed coupon and you'll receive a colorful brochure which will explain our personalization program, and how we can make the owning of a new GBH Home one of the most satisfying experiences of your life.

TUNNEL INSPECTOR is Dr. Mary Helen Johnston, a metallurgical engineering specialist at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama, looking over the interior of a prototype Spacelab Crew Transfer Tunnel to be used for astronauts moving from one space craft to another while in orbit. Dr. Johnston, who spent five days in an earthbound replica of Spacelab quarters, was inspecting the flexible tunnel for structural defects.

The Doctor says:

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 71-year-old man and had my first angina attack at the age of 49. This attack was severe, worse than any of the subsequent attacks that took place over the years. During my 50s I lived a miserable existence. I couldn't walk a full block without stopping to let the heart pains subside. I was using 10 to 15 nitroglycerin pills daily and was in a constant state of depression due to my condition.

During that period I was more or less on a low-fat diet. I wasn't actually convinced that it would help, and I would go off the diet sporadically. Usually when this happened I would end up in the hospital with another attack that nitro pills couldn't handle. Then in 1967 I discovered Questran, and I started taking it twice daily and also went on a very strict polyunsaturated diet. I brought my cholesterol count down from 360 to 215. I am able to do many things others my age can't do, such as play tennis, ride a bicycle, gardening, etc., and I have no need of nitro pills—haven't touched one for three or four years.

Recently I picked up a book in the library that, in effect, tells me a polyunsaturated diet will eventually give me cancer, shorten my life, make me look prematurely old, and affect my skin adversely. I believe I am the living antithesis to these statements. I have been on a low-fat diet for more than 20 years and instead of looking older I look much younger than my actual age. My skin looks as though it belonged to a person 15 years younger, and I am healthier right now than I have been for the past 22 years. Whose axe are these people grinding?

DEAR READER—There are a number of different opinions on the importance of diet in heart disease and prevention of atherosclerosis. Almost everyone of any competence agrees that the one thing that really helps is to eliminate excess body fat through diet and exercise. There is less unanimous agreement on the other points.

It is fair to say, though, that most of the serious scientists who have actually worked on the clinical aspects of the problem, dealing with people, believe that it is important to limit fat intake, particularly to limit saturated fat and limit cholesterol intake.

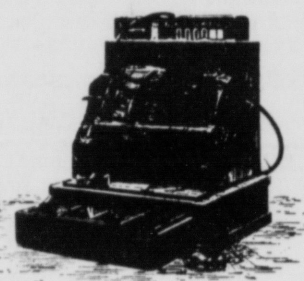

With the combined emphasis on these steps and also emphasizing the importance of stopping smoking and obtaining regular sensible exercise, there has been a turn around in the incidence of heart attacks in men between the ages of 35 and 64. The death rate has dropped from 463 per 100,000 in 1968 to 427.7 per 100,000 in 1972. That suggests we are moving in the right direction.

I must agree, the evidence that taking lots of polyunsaturated fat in the diet helps prevent heart disease is a bit meager or unconvincing, but I am satisfied that you are wise to limit the total fat and particularly the saturated fat in the diet. This won't help much, though, unless you really eliminate or prevent obesity.

In any event, you are a good example of what can be done in some cases through proper diet and medical treatment.

Police network report surprises some

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disclosure of activities of a nationwide police intelligence network caught some city officials by surprise, prompted calls for investigations and also drew criticism and praise from law enforcement officials.

A Cook County, Ill., prosecutor said Wednesday he planned to investigate what role the Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit may have played in alleged surveillance of citizens by the Chicago police.

Dallas, Tex., city officials said they had never heard of LEIU even though the Dallas police department is among its members. They said they planned to investigate the unit's activities.

An Atlanta, Ga., police intelligence officer said that city's membership in LEIU was suspended because of its stand against "political snooping."

The Associated Press questioned city officials and police in many of the more than 200 communities in the United States where LEIU has members. With $1.3 million in federal funds, the organization has established the Interstate Organized Crime Index containing more than 18,000 names that LEIU officials say are linked to organized crime.

Supporters of LEIU said it enables police intelligence officials to keep track of the activities of racketeers identified as members of criminal syndicates.

But Houston, Tex., police officials said they left LEIU after getting requests for personal data about persons without known ties to crime.

And it was learned that a former police agent has told Senate investigators he spied on private citizens while operating undercover with LEIU sponsorship.

The former agent was identified as Douglas Durham of Des Moines, Iowa, who told a news conference in March that he had been an FBI informant while working as security chief for the American Indian Movement (AIM).

Durham said he passed information to the FBI during the 1973 takeover by AIM of Wounded Knee, S.D. He said he also gave the FBI reports of conferences between AIM leaders and their lawyers when they were on trial for their role in the siege.

The charges against the Indians were dismissed.

Durham, a former Marine, said that before taking the FBI assignment he had worked as an undercover agent for LEIU. He worked out of the Des Moines police department but had at least one assignment that took him to Lincoln, Neb., with a fake identity and false criminal record.

He said he was involved in spying on private citizens not connected with criminal activity and that targets of surveillance included lawyers for the American Civil Liberties Union.

Many police officials said they were unaware of any LEIU activities resembling those described by Houston police or Durham.

Capt. Herbert McCoy of the Kansas City, Mo., Police Department said, "We collect and provide information on individuals who are in the upper echelons of crime ... Because of their mobility, these people can live in one city and never commit a crime there, but travel to other cities and commit crimes."

McCoy said the best control on such intelligence is "the integrity of police officers. We know what's legal and illegal. I have to go home at night and sleep. Most policemen have a conscience, you know."

Members of LEIU are individual officers, not departments. They pay $35 a year dues, usually reimbursed by the department, along with the cost of attending twice-yearly national meetings.

Dr. No-No's helpful hints on how to save natural gas & money:

"Dirty furnace filters.
Yech!

That's a no-no, friends.
Throw the rascals
out and put in fresh ones every 30 to 60 days.

You'll get more heat with less gas. And for less money!"

Clogged furnace filters take more gas and blower power. Inspect them every heating month, and clean or replace if dirty. That way, you'll keep your home clean, help conserve gas to meet your needs tomorrow, and save money to meet your needs today.

What can you lose?

"Change dirty filters and keep the change."
